CHAUFFEUR'S SIDE OF STORY

He is Under Orders and Not to Blame for Many of the Accidents.

"O, yes; the public are ready enough to mob the chauffeur," said the young man in the garage, "but you never hear his side of the story. When he takes a lady out for an airing he can't run things to suit himself. He is under orders. He is going along a crowded street when my lady suddenly calls out:

"Henry, isn't that Mrs. Peters on the sidewalk?"

"He turns his head to look and bumps into a kid crossing the street, and my lady calls out:

"Henry, that must be my husband on the steps of the house."

"Henry turns to see, and knocks down an old woman. He speeds up for three minutes to get away, and has checked down a bit, when my lady exclaims:

"Henry, that is surely Mrs. Davison."

"I look for Mrs. Davison and bump a man and a policeman yells at me. I am ordered to get away, and do so, and my heart has just stopped palpitating when my lady calls out:

"I think that was Mrs. Saunders in the taxi. Hurry up, Henry."

"I hurry, and take a wheel off a carriage and graze a stenographer, and before I can get away the police nab me. We are taken to the police station, and when my lady is asked if she wants to give bail for me she replies:

"No, I think not. Henry is a very careless driver and should be taught a lesson. I think a fine of $5 will be a lesson to him."

WHY HE PUT ON MOURNING

Billy Bowen Could See the Difference Between Two Relationships That Were Complicated.

"To which is a man most closely related," said the genealogist, "his first divorced wife's second husband or his present wife's first divorced husband?"

"So far as I can see, one is about as close as the other," said a thoughtful friend.

"So I should say," said the genealogist, "but Billy Bowen must have figured out a difference. Anyhow, when his first wife's second husband died Billy went to a ball game, but when his present wife's first husband died he went into mourning. I can't understand that."

"I can," said the thoughtful friend. "Billy's present wife was on the point of divorcing him so she could remarry her first husband. Now that he is dead, she has decided to stick to Billy."

"Ah, I see," said the genealogist.

WHEN THE IMMORTALS NODDED.

The French papers have made much of a slip by M. Emile Faguet in his oration before the Academy. The Academician rendered to Caesar more than was Caesar's due, for he gave the "fighter and writer" credit for a line which belongs to Cato. But it seems the immortals are not immune from lapsus linguae. General Langlois got mixed up with Paletro and Solferino. Even Scribe made Moliere refer to the revocation of the edict of Nantes, which took place in 1685, 12 years after Moliere's death. But perhaps a more glaring instance is that of Montesquieu, who, in his "Esprit des Lois," vol. I, chap. xxi, 22, writes: "I have many times deplored the blindness of the council of Francis I, who rebuffed Christopher Columbus when he propounded his scheme for India." But Francis I. ascended the throne in 1515, nine years after the date of the death of Columbus.

CAUSE OF HIGH SEA WAVES.

The great size of the sea waves in high southern latitudes has been explained by the fact that south of the Cape of Good Hope and Cape Horn there is neither windward nor leeward shore and the prevailing wind in all longitudes is westerly. Thus when a west wind springs up it finds a long westerly swell, the effect of a previous wind, still running. The new-born wind increases the steepness of this swell, and so forms majestic storm waves which sometimes attain a length of 1,200 feet from crest to crest.

HE WAS ROLLING IN WEALTH

Man in Vermont Mountains Who Had a Hundred Dollars Was Considered Very Rich.

Fred Emery was visiting in the mountains of Vermont last summer when he met, on the road, a long-whiskered and talkative old man. There ensued the following conversation between the mountaineer and Emery:

"Be you acquainted in these parts?"

"I sure be."

"Be you acquainted with Seth Anderson?"

"I sure be. I know Seth well. He lives up on the Valley road."

"Waal, waal! Be you acquainted with Cy Southbridge?"

"I sure be. He lives down on the Mill road."

"Waal, now! Be you acquainted with Cy's daughter, Mary?"

"I sure be. She's a mighty likely-looking girl."

"Waal, Mary is married to a wealthy man—an all-fired wealthy man!"

"You don't tell me!"

"An all-fired wealthy man! Why her husband is worth one hundred dollars!"—Popular Magazine.

SHE DIDN'T REALLY MEAN IT

Rejected Sultor Takes Young Lady at Her Word and Receives Only Abuse.

"I'm so sorry," she said, as gently as possible. "But I cannot be all that you wish in your life. I will always think of you as a very dear friend, though."

"Thanks," he muttered.

"And if there is any way in which I can ever help you by advice or endeavor you must not hesitate to call on me."

"Do you mean it? Well, there is a way, right now."

"What can I do?"

"You have refused to marry me. So I thought I'd propose to Mollie Jones. If you'll see her and put in a good word for me it'll help me a lot and might make me the happiest man on earth. My destiny's still in your hands, and—"

And that was all he said. For she interrupted him by saying that he was the meanest, lowest, sneakiest man on earth and that she would never speak to him again as long as she lived.

SATIRIST FOR OUR SINS.

Mr. Robert Herrick has said a true word in declaring America's need of a great satirical novelist. That is a golden gift to any age or any nation, but never, it must seem to us, would such a gift be more timely than at this stage of the democratic experiment in America.

Its special value to us would lie in its access to our national sense of humor. That sense is now chiefly mere joke, irresponsible, unpropitious, inconclusive and superficial. But to a great satirical humorist it would open wide to the light. The trouble with much of our self-flagellation is that it lacks true proportion, which is the strong merit of satire. It is not merely serious. It is a glum. It has not the tonic sting of high comedy. Against it not only our sensual complacency reacts, but also our common sense.

"CAPTURING" AN EAGLE.

One of the incidents of the last season in Dead River region that escaped press notice at the time was the fact that William Ledyard of Boston and Albert Leavering of New York, then guests at Round Mountain camps, attempted to capture an eagle and were unable to carry off the sky king alive. The furious bird made such good use of his beak and claws that the gentlemen were finally obliged to hold him under water until he was drowned, in order to demonstrate that one of them was not in reality a captive of the eagle. —From Maine Woods.
